The Woman Tells of Her Elevation From a Low Position to One of Affluence.

SHE IS CHARGED WITH EXTORTION

Mrs. Elias Admitted She Had Served Terms in Prison For Larceny and Disorderly Conduct.

Mr. Platt Is Suing Her To Compel Her To Return $685,000 Which He Claims She Extorted From Him.

New York, Jan. 19.—Hannah Elias, the Negress whom aged John R. Platt is suing to compel her to return $685,-000 which he claims she extorted from him during an acquaintance of 20 years, told the story of her life before Justice O'Gorman, in the supreme court. It was an extraordinary tale of sudden elevation from the lowest and most vicious surroundings to a position of affluence where money was literally rained on her and where she had everything that great wealth House of Representatives Adoptcould provide. She declared that she had nothing to conceal and insisted that every dollar that Platt gave her had been given voluntarily. She believed, she said, that she was under no obligations to return any part of the money which she now possesses. How much money Platt gave her she could not say, even approximately, as she never kept any accounts of his gifts, which were made in large sums at frequent intervals during their entire acquaintance.

Mr. Platt Was Very Generous.

from the first, she said, but he became more so after the death of his wife in 1893. He told her at that time that he wanted to provide for her handsomely and explained that if he mentioned her in his will a contest might result. He had decided, therefore, to give her a great deal of money while he was yet alive. He advised her to invest this money carefully and suggested that it might be well for her to place a considerable portion of it in savings banks. She said that the old man always had been very kind to her. Six months after his wife's death he gave the witness Mrs. Platt's watch and pocketbook. She identified these articles when they were produced by Mr. Black. Mrs. Elias apparently made no attempt to cover the details of her early life. She answered readily every question by her counsel as to her methods of life in Philadelphia art as speakers. The former senator and immediately after coming to this city, and admitted that she had served two terms in prison, one in Philade!phia for larceny and the other in this

Distributed Her Wealth Freely.

It developed during the examination of witnesses that Mrs. Elias had distributed her easily acquired wealth with a free hand among those who had been of assistance to her. Lawyer Washington Brauns received from her more than $10,000 in fees. She paid more than $60,000 to one firm for carpets and furniture. A man, who acted as godfather at the christening of her child, received a present of $1.-000, and when the child died it was placed in a mausoleum which she erected at a cost of $6,000. It appeared from the testimony also that John R. Platt had paid Lawyer Nanz $3,500 in connection with one of the Elias suits in which the lawyer was interested.

WILL BE REPORTED TO THE SENATE

This Action Was the Culmination of a Debate Which Was in Progress For Over a Week.

Mr. Platt was very generous, even The Charges of Impropriety Made in Connection With the Campaigns of 1896 and 1904 Were Revived in the Senate.

> Washington, Jan. 19 .-- Senate. -- The charges of impropriety made in connection with the campaigns of 1896 and 1904 were revived for a time in the senate by Mr. Stone, who spoke in support of his resolution providing for an investigation of the charges. He used with much freedom the names of President Roosevelt, Judge Parker and Chairman Cortelyou, and again related the allegations that Mr. Cor. A Report Showing the Number in the telyou had used the information secured by him as secretary of commerce and labor to secure money from the trusts. The discussion of the statehood bill continued, with Messrs. Clay, Nelson, Bailey and Stewand late vice presidential candidate, Hon. Henry Gassaway Davis, was a visitor on the floor of the senate and was cordially received by senators generally, especially by Senator Fairbanks.

House.-The house of representatives adopted the 12 articles of impeachment against Judge Charles Swayne, of the district court of the Northern district of Florida, which had been presented by its special committee of investigation. The speaker was authorized to appoint seven managers to present the case to the senate and conduct the impeachment proceedings before that body. This action was the culmination of a debate which has been in progress for over a week and which has developed partisan feeling and personal vituperation. The last time the house voted to present articles of impeachment was in 1876, when it voted the impeachment of W. W. Belknap, secretary of war under President Grant.

The. First Vote.

The first vote, that to table the first three articles, those relating to the falsification of expenses, went against Boonville, Mo., Jan. 19.-Following of five votes. Second Session.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Senate.—By a vote of 30 to 24 the senate decided to consider the crosstown street railway. bill for Washington, but the measure soon gave place to the statehood bill. That measure was discussed for three hours by Messrs. Simmons and Hepburn, both of whom favored the elimi nation of Arizona from the bill.

House .- Debate on the Swayne impeachment case in the house was ex-haustive, dealing with many of the legal phases of the charges against Judge Swayne. The senate resolution fixing Wednesday, Feoruary 8, as the time for counting the electoral vote for president and vice president, the proceedings to take place in the hall of the houses, was adopted. A resohicion was agreed to providing for the collection of additional cotton statistics by the census bureau. Washington, Jan. 18.—Senate.—The unusual spectacle of a United States senator explaining on the floor of the senate charges made against himself in a court of law in his own state was witnessed in the senate, when Mr. Mitchell (Ore.) spoke of the indictment recently returned against him by an Oregon grand jury. The senator had not previously appeared in the senate since the indictment was returned and he was received by his fellow senators with many evidences of good will. He was much affected his emotion at times being such that he read his statement with great difficulty. Mr. Hepburn concluded his speech on the statehood bill and Mr. Stone gave notice of a speech on his resolution for an investigation of the months, to the great hardship and charges of corruption in the cam-settled through the mediation of Gov. House. - With an agreement reach-William L. Douglas. Under the terms ed to vote on the Swayne impeachof an agreement as accepted by both ment articles, the debate was carried manufacturers and operatives, at a on at high pressure for more than five hours. Mr. Grosvenor furnished the strikers will return to work at once Bourke Cockran by the reading of a under the 12½ per cent. reduction, letter from Judge Pardee, of New Or leans, declaring that politics was at and with no discrimination because of the bottom of the impeachment prothe strike. No rate of wages was es- ceedings. The fact of a judge transtablished, but it was agreed that Gov. mitting such a letter, Mr. Cockran de Douglas shall investigate the matter clared dramatically, was "A montsrous spectacle." Mr. Grosvenor asserted that there was no ground presented for impeachment in the report of the committee. The other defenders of the clusions as to an average margin up- Fiorida judge during the day were on which the manufacturers are to Messrs. PROVES GREAT POWER

When Regular Medical Treatment Failed, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Cured Her Rheumatism.

Hundreds of people afflicted with rheumatism have spent years under the care of excellent physicians in vain. Then they have settled down to the conviction that it is fastened on them for life. Mrs. Dinsmore was not willing to join the ranks of the hopeless merely because her doctor did not know how to help her. Here is her story:

"Four years ago I suffered greatly with rheumatism in my hands and knees. After I had been sitting a while my limbs seemed so heavy I could hardly walk on the first attempt. So long as I kept moving I was all right, but just as soon as I stopped, something seemed to settle in my knees and make them ache. My hands were so bad I couldn't touch the palms of them on a flat surface; they were swollen and pained so,"

"Did you call in a physician?" "I doctored steadily for over a year; then one doctor said: 'You have taken medicine strong enough to kill almost anything.' Still, it did not kill me nor the rheumatism."

"How, then, did you get rid of it?" "At different times I had read in various publications about Dr. Williams' wonderful Pink Pills for Pale People, and I finally decided to try them. I took them steadily for four months in accordance with the directions. By that time I was completely cured."

"Have you been free from it ever since?"

"Since then I have had but one slight return of my trouble, and a box or two of the same pills made me all right again." Mrs. F. A. Dinsmore lives in hearty enjoyment of her recovered health at Woburn, Mass., entirely freed from the grave anxieties that rheumatism always brings. When it appears in but a single joint it shows that the blood is in a faulty state in the whole body. It may at any moment break out elsewhere, and one of the dangers is that it may break out in the heart and then the result must be fatal. The only security is to keep the blood all the time in a perfectly sound condition

A Lot of Trouble from Too Much Starchy Food.

A little boy of eight years whose parents did not feed him on the right kind of food, was always nervous and suffered from a weak condition of the stomach and bowels. Finally he was taken down with appendicitis and after the operation the doctor, knowing that his intestinal digestion was very weak, put him on Grape-Nuts twice a day.

He rapidly recovered and about two months thereafter, his Father states, "He has grown to be strong, muscular, and sleeps soundly, weighs 62 pounds, and his whole system is in a fine condition of health." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

BUDGET OF GOSSIP FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

ALLISON IN THE SENATE.

He Holds the Record for Continuous Service-Congress Listens to Authorities - An Interesting White House Character.

ASHINGTON. --Senator William Boyd Allison, of Iowa, now holds the record for the longest continuous service in the United States senate. For half a century that honor belonged to the late Thomas Benton, of Missouri, but his length of service was eclipsed by the late Justin S. Morrill, of Vermont, and now Senator Allison is the record breaker. Senator Benton had a continuous service in the senate of 30 years. On the day of his death Senator Morrill had held a seat continuously in the senate for 31 years, 9 months and 24 days. Senator Allison, on the first of January, had rounded out 31 years, 9 months and 26 days. On the 4th of next March he will have been in the senate continuously 32 years, having taken his seat for the first time on March 4, 1873.

There have been senators who could trace back their entry into the senate for many more years than any of these distinguished statesmen who held their seats continuously for so long. For instance, there was the late John Sherman, of Ohio, who took his seat as the successor of Salmon P. Chase, who had been made secretary of the treasury in President Lincoln's cabinet on March 23, 1861. He resigned from the senate on March 5, 1897, or 36 years after he had first taken the oath. In the meantime, however, he had left the senate for four years to become secretary of the treasury under President Hayes. His total service was 31 years, 11 months and 14 days.

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, who will retire on the 4th of March, first took his seat February 1, 1865, just 40 years ago the 1st of next month. His service, however, was broken by an interval of 12 years from 1875 to 1887. Senator Allison had eight years to his credit in the house before he went to the senate, so that on March 4 he will have rounded out 40 years of continuone service in congress.

The construction of canals which involves the use of excavating machinery was something with which Mr. Hanna was altogether familiar, and the convincing way in which he talked of this business proposition made his speeches the most effective of any delivered on the floor of the senate.

The majority of the senators are lawyers, many of them theorists, and not a few purely sophomoric orators. It was a delight to them to listen to some one who could talk practical common sense and enlighten them on business methods which he could explain in a way to be understood.

Senator Kearns, of Utah, has seldom opened his mouth in the senate, but the other day, when the subject of the mining laws and practical mining the other day with a lighted eigar in came up, Mr. Kearns took the floor and was at once at his ease in discussing a subject which he knows from there. Removing his cigar, he asked, the bottom up. He had learned mining from the pick and shovel up to the latest mechanical method, and there was no point in the whole subject with which he was not familiar. The senate listened to him with great attention, but when he talked of ledges, outcrops, surface indication, dips, levels, slag, strikes, extra lateral rights. veins, bounding planes, segment, quartzite, apex law, drifts, bores, vertical surface, overlying formations, etc., his colleagues were ready to accept his statements on faith.

statesmen as those of more conspicuous public characters. Simmons ran away from his home in North Carolina in 1864. He made his way to Washington and, like all negroes, looked on Abraham Lincoln as the patron saint Frank Evans and William Brownof his race, and the one to whom he could appeal for help. In all these years of rubbing against statesmen and public officials Arthur has received some polish, but he still retains one noted trait of his race-a love for the succulent 'possum. Every holiday season some of his old friends in the south send him the finest, fattest 'possums they can discover.

"Just you wait till next Sunday, and if you want to see the best dinner in Washington, come around to my little home," he will say. "I have the finest, fattest, persimmon-fed 'possum you ever saw. I will put him out doors in the frost until Sunday morning, and then I'll have him cooked with yams around him and with brown gravy. Then there will be apple sauce and persimmon sauce, and just a taste of something to wash it all down."

be a merry time over isthmian canal legislation. Some of the big statesmen at the capitol have gotten the idea that the canal commission created by last year's legislation is an unwieldy body and has not "made good." They are proposing to abolish the commission as it now stands and authorize another of not more than three members, and these gentlemen to receive salaries of not exceeding $7,500 a year each. The salaries of the present commission are $12,000 a year. Naturally there will be some opposition to reducing this commission, and especially to a reduction in its compensation. The commission, of which Rear Admiral Walker is chairman, is prepared to show that each member has performed valuable service, and that its future work demands at least seven members, each one of whom can have a particular branch of the work in charge.

The house committee, of which Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, is chairman, and which visited the isthmus just before the meeting of congress, seems particularly set against a continuance of the present commission. Members assert that the commission has done very little work and that all of a practical nature that has been accomplished has been due to Chief Engineer Wallace, who is supposed to be subordinate to and modest man the commission. ing Arrested on a Warrant Sworn Out by an Attorney.

The Arrests Were Due to a Story Told by the Divorced Wife of Browning.

The Woman Says He Confeed That He and Evans Did the Deed-Both Men Deny All Knowledge of the Killing.

Bedford, Ind., Jan. 19.—Frank Evans and William Elmer Browning were arrested on warrants sworn out by John H. Underwood, an attorney, charging them with the murder of Miss Sarah C. Schafer on the night of January 21, 1903. The men were taken to Underwood's office, where they were questioned for an hour without result.

The arrest is due to a story told by Mrs. Cook, the divorced wife of Browning. According to her story her hus-HERE promises to band, from whom she was at the time separated, told her that he and Evans had killed Miss Schafer. In the confession she says he made to her he said that he and Evans had planned to assault Miss Schafer on the night previous to the murder, but one of them failed to appear and the assault was postponed until the following night, when the two met at the alley and as Miss Schafer passed Browning struck her on the head with a slungshot, stunning her.

> The Blow That Killed Her. Evans caught her and carried her into the cabshed where, with a flat rock a little larger than a man's hand he struck her a blow on the forehead which resulted in her death.

According to the story told by Mrs. Cook, Evans and Browning walked west through the alley to M street. On the way Evans produced a bottle of whisky and after giving Browning a drink took one himself and threw the bottle down where it was found next morning.

Evans changed his clothing, giving the bloodstained garments to Browning with instructions to burn them. Browning gave them to his wife, who hid them, where, it is claimed, they were found a few days ago. Among the clothing is a cuff with a button to match one said to have been found in the cabshed a day or two after the

Looks Like A Long Session.

The prospects for a short session of the Legislature were considerably nesday at the Capital. It became apparent that there was to be a poliev of obstruction in and the opinion was freely expressed that a forty day session might be expected, with a possibility that it would extend to the legal limit of sixty days. Some of the members propose that the old question of removal of the Capitol to another city shall be fought over.

She Will Sleep To-Night.

Whe following beautiful lines were written by Rev. Joseph A. Malone, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of this city, and dedicated to Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Kenney upon the death of their daughter, Mrs. Mayme Kenney Ferguson:]

Smooth out the braids of her silken On her queenly brow with tender care; Gather the robe in a final fold Around the form that will not grow old: Lay on her bosom, pure as snow,

The fairest, sweetest, flowers that blow; Kiss her and leave her, your heart's delight, In dreamless peace she will sleep to-

A shadowy gleam of life-light lies Around the lids of her slumberous eyes, And her lips are closed as in fond delay Of the loving words she had to say; But hear gentle heart forgot to beat,

And from dainty head to dainty feet She is strangely quiet, cold and white, The fever is gone; she will sleep, tonight.

Put by her work and her empty chair; Fold up the garments she used to wear; Let down the curtains and close the

Is finished now, and the guerdon won; Tenderly kiss her, put out the light, And leave her alone-she will sleep to-night.

O Blessed sleep, that will not break For tears, nor prayers, nor love's sweet sake:

O perfect rest, that knows no pain, No throb, no thrill of heart or brain; O life sublime beyond all speech, That only the pure through dying reach;

God understands and His ways are right; Bid His beloved a long good-night.

Weep for the days that will come no For the sunbeam's flown from heath

Fail to Elect Caucus Nominee.

Thomas K. Niedringhaus, the Reablican caucus nominee for United states Senator, failed of election in the Missouri Legislature Wednesday owing to a bolt of eight of the Republican legislators. Seven of the bolting Republicans voted for R. C. Kerens who was defeated by Mr. Niedringnaus for the Republican caucus nomination. The anti-Nieringhaus forces elaim that the bolting element will be strengthened and assert that at least ifteen votes will be cast against Nielringhaus by Republican members. It is believed by well-posted politic ans at Jefferson City that the defeat of Niedringhaus is assured.

"What, monsieur!" "And now, too!"

"But, Monsieur le Marquis, did you not say she was betrothed to the Count de Kersaint?"

"Monseigneur," answered the marquis haughtily, "here is a strange mischance. I can not tell the tale, but the honor of my house requires a marriage, now and instantly, between this young man and the Countess Anne de Rohan. I jest not, monseigneur. Morbleu! do I look like a man who trifles? You have known me of old, most reverend sir, I mean what I say. The marriage must take place!"

"But Monsieur de Kersaint?" "God help him when he knows the truth!" said the marguis. "Will you proceed, monseigneur?"

"The young man is of our faith?" "No, monseigneur," answered Grafton. "I am a Protestant."

"But you can dispense with that yourself, monseigneur," interrupted the marquis promptly. "I tell you nothing shall prevent this."

"My love and desire, most reverend sir, more than match her own, yet I must say, I protest that this hasty marriage implies no doubt upon the honor

By your consent, by your urging, we were married. She is mine before Heaven itself. No man may part her from me. She goes with me.'

"Monsieur," said the marquis, striving to regain his wonted calmness, "you may storm the castle if you will You will not find madame here. When the French fleet sails in the morning we go with her. Now, men, upon him!

Grafton discharged his pistol at the nearest valet, and as the man fell he hurled the empty weapon into the midst of the rest. With one look at Anne he turned and sprang through the oriel window. He grasped the rope and slid down it rapidly.

The men surged toward the balcony. Anne sprang between them. She caught the marquis by the arm and Josette seized Jean-Renaud, but the rest swarmed past them and filled the balcony. One of the men lifted a dagger to cut the rope. A deafening roar rang out in the night; the man screamed with pain and his arm dropped to his side. Another shot was heard. The crowd shrank back for a few seconds and Grafton reached the foot of the tower. He scrambled down the rocks to find old Jabez, smoking musket in his hand, waiting for him in the prow of the boat.

'Who fired?" he cried. "'Twas me, yer Honor; I was awatchin' the winder. I seen yer Honor come out, then I seen the man raise the knife, an' I blazed away at him. I hain't forgot how to shoot nuther.' "You saved me," cried Grafton.

'Shove off the boat. Lively! Break out the oars; we must get away." Slocum sprang to the oars and Grafton seized the tiller. The balcony above was filled with men now. The old marguis was there, and Anne-his wife. He could spare only a second for a glance. The light from blazing torches threw a dim illumination down upon the little bay. A woman

CHAPTER XXVII.

THE ADMIRAL GETS THE NEWS. T was early in the morning of the fourteenth day of November, 1759. The Maidstone was gently swinging into Torbay.

The wind, which had been blowing hard from the southwest during the "'Tis true you have the advantage, night, had moderated until it was now Monsieur le Marquis. I can not take a gentle breeze, so that every cloth Madame Grafton away from you to- of canvas, including her studdingnight, alone as I am, but be certain sails, was spread on the frigate to that I will come back for her with force catch and hold the light air. Grafveying the roadstead.

The harbor was crowded with great ships of the line, huge monsters, swinging to their anchors, prows pointed out to sea under the incoming tide, now at full flood. The one nearest to the Maidstone, and consequently the farthest from the shore, was a magnificent vessel of three decks, carrying 100 guns. From her main-masthead a small blue flag could be seen fluttering, which denoted the rank of the commander of the fleet, a full admiral.

The different ships of this great armada with nice seamanship had places, and all were in beautiful orhand, and their ponderous yards squared with geometrical accuracy. Their complicated tracery of rigging and running gear, tautened with mathematical nicety and soaring aloft from the mass of black and heavy shrouds and swifters, springing from top, cross-tree and yard-arm, in ever-refining and more delicate lines, rose higher and higher until it was focused upon the truck-ends of the slender skysail poles, which terminated the ponderous and towering spars.

Though weather-beaten and stormworn, they seemed fit for any emergency. Like the veterans of an army. they were ready for any demand which could be made upon them, and they looked it. There was a sense of use, of habit, of action, of power, conveyed in their stately repose on the unruffled surface of the water that morning, which filled the young men, who were contemplating them, with pride and delight.

Forward on the Maidstone the foreroval-halliards had been settled away as she drew up the roads, and her the guests.' number had been made at the foreroyal-masthead. When it had been acknowledged on the flagship, the latter had signalled for the frigate to anchor under her lee. On account of the position of the admiral's ship, the Royal George, well in advance of the rest of the squadron, there was ample room for Grafton to come boldly in head-on, with all standing, sweep to port, and make his anchorage without interfering with any other ship in the fleet.

The Maidstone made a superb picture from the flagship. There was just wind enough to fill every sail rap full, and she slipped easily through the water, rocking and pitching as gently, as noiselessly, as a summer cloud driven across the sky by scarcefelt breezes. It was time.

"Right the helm! Stand by the starboard anchor! Man the spanker brails! Let go the starboard anchor! Brail in!"

With a mighty plunge the great anchor dropped into the still waters of the bay. The hempen cable rushed through the hawse-pipes, the ship surged slowly ahead a moment, and then, her way checked by the pull of the cable and the flooding tide as well, she stopped, settled back, and slowly dropped astern, where she swung to the full scope of the cable. She had come to rest exactly where she should be. It could not have been more deftly done if she had been picked up and "All hands furl sail! Lay aloft, top-

Old Hawke lifted and waved his hand toward the frigate, and, as if it French ships are to sail for Quiberon had been a signal, 1,000 throats on his own ship sent forth a ringing cheer of acknowledgment and greeting.

The men had been watching the movements of the Maidstone with intense interest and appreciation. They knew good seamanship when they saw it. Hawke was a thorough sailor sails on Le Thesee with the fleet in and would tolerate no one who was not, in any ship or fleet he commanded. Grafton's heart swelled with pride and pleasure as he lifted his hat and waved it toward his generous superior in grateful acknowledgment. And, indeed, never had a delicate maneuver been more gracefully and smartly per-

As soon as the men, who had finished their duties most expeditiously, had laid down from aloft, and had begun to square yards and clear up the gear, Grafton directed his gig to be called away, and temporarily relinquishing the charge of the ship to Hatfield, he repaired on board the flagship. He was met at the gangway of the latter vessel by Capt. John Campbell, her commander, and was at once escorted to the quarter-deck, whither Hawke, attended by his staff, had descended to meet him.

"Ah, Grafton," he said in a deep voice, which well accorded with his stout person, "I am glad to see you happened to Lot's wife?" again; and let me tell you I never saw a ship brought to in better shape than that one. 'Twas a smart piece of seamanship and handsomely done. 1 hope our young gentlemen marked it, in a sack of salt." Campbell. Now, sir, we are brimful of curiosity to know your errand. Eh, captain? My young friends here have been fairly thirsting to hear your tidings. What news?'

"Dispatches, Sir Edward, from Vice Admiral Saunders. Here they are,

"And how is my old friend?" exclaimed the admiral, taking the packet. "Well,sir."

"And that bold fire-eater, young Gen. Wolfe? He was on my ship in the Rochefort expedition, and I-"He is dead, sir," interrupted Grafton sadly.

We have no complaint to offer. We have had a good year, crops were good and we have had a delightful season. I threshed from my place 8,650 bushels of grain. My oats made 65 bushels per acre and weighed 421% nounds per bushel. My wheat made 311/2 bushels per acre and is No. 1 quality. My barley made about 30 bushels of good quality. My crop is a fair average of the crops in the Edmonton district. "All crops were good here this season. Potatoes the finest I ever saw, and all vegetables adapted to the climate. We have had a very fine fall but no exception to the rule as the fall season is, I think, the most pleasant of the year. We have had no snow yet. (Nov. 9), and have been plowing and working the land preparing for an early seeding next spring. Last night the mercury dropped lower than any previous night this fall and this morning there is a crust of frost on the fields sufficient to prevent field work. No doubt many would imagine that Alberta had put on her winter overcoat before this and that the people were wrapped in furs, but it is only a question of time when this country will not be looked upon as an iceberg, but a country fit for the best of mankind to live in. "We are now assured of a transcontinental railway, which is to be built to the Pacific during the next five years. The Canadian Northern road is graded to within seventy-five miles of Edmonton. It comes from Winnipeg, and will reach us next summer, so with one railroad already at hand, the second to reach us in less than a year, and the third to penetrate our city and open up this country to the west across the Rockies to the coast within five years, we surely have reason to believe that the country is progressing.
